DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 76-95 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 76-95 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rider (U.S. Patent No. 5,264,795) in view of Schneider et al. (US Patent 4,262,171).

Regarding claims 76-95, for at least the unpatentable of independent claim 76, Rider discloses a communication system for communicating between a surface and an underground system, wherein a transmitter at the first system comprises amplifiers coupled to an antenna(s) for amplifying received signals before outputting the signals to the antenna 190 (Fig. 6 & Fig. 8 for internal circuitry of output circuit 170) and a series of capacitor are used for reducing impedance of the antenna (Fig. 11, and col. 9/lines 54 to col. 10/line 2); the output signals then are coupled by magnetic flux linkage or magnetic field 32 to another antenna of a second system, i.e., a receiving system 220 with antennas 501, 502, 503 with a carrier signal addressed (see Fig. 5, and col. 8/line 50 to col. 9/line 53).

Rider does not clearly point out to include "a modulator for modulating a single sideband carrier signal"; however, Rider inherently suggests including that modulator since a transmitter has means for modulating a signal and providing the modulated output carrier signal whereas the carrier signal regarding as a single sideband carrier signal for the system (col. 8/lines 4-47). In addition, it is known in the art that in mine environment, a modulator with single sideband technique (SSB) is commonly used. Eventually, Schneider teaches an exact same technique for communication system within a mine environment that users can communicate to each other using computer stations equipped with transceivers having modulators using SSB transmission technique (see Fig. 1, and col. 2/line 50 to col. 3/line 36; and Fig. 2A/item 56 for a modulator, and col. 3/line 36 to col. 4/line 39 for concerned issues). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Rider's system with a well-known modulator using SSB as taught by Schneider in order to modulating a single sideband carrier signal of the transmitter as desired as suggested by Rider and taught by Schneider. Other claims are unpatentable based at least on this reason of claim 76.
